

please...please...please...

leave XM alone. there is FAR too much regulation on broadcasting in the mainstream radio/TV already. I value the new local programming that XM provides me with. this makes my commute far more efficient and enjoyable, as I can plan my route according to the most up-to-the-minute information available.

how transparent is the NAB in it's fight against this? if they can't sell commercials for it, then they're against it. please don't let this anti-competitive lobbying organization influence our choices in entertainment, news, and information. who represents the average listener in all this?

how can anyone say we are a free country when we have organizations trying to 'protect' us when we don't need it. that's oppression and it's fascism. it condescending and patronizing for any group, organization or governing body to tell me what I can or cannot listen to or watch.

stop the insanity of the religious right and their 'moral' agenda. if someone doesn't want to hear Howard Stern, they should change the station. people REALLY need to start accepting some form of personal responsibility for themselves and their children.

free speech and true freedom of expression is disappearing before our eyes. please don't allow the large corporate interests and the religious fanatics to tell me what is OK for me to be exposed to. that should be my choice after all, right?

freedom is being whittled away at, by the same people who spout off about it when it helps them get elected. it's time to stop the rhetoric and start the fight against this nanny-ism.

I'm an adult. Let me decide.
